

On behalf of all Montrealers, I am pleased to welcome you to our metropolis. I am grateful to IEEE Canada for having selected Montréal to celebrate the 25th anniversary of this Canadian Conference on Electrical and Computer Engineering.

Montréal is a city of knowledge, acclaimed for its spirit of creativity and innovation. Our cultural metropolis, which will soon commemorate its 375th anniversary, possesses many great attributes that I hope you will discover.

Many of you are already well acquainted with Montréal, but may be surprised to see how our fair city continues to evolve and grow ever more beautiful, while preserving the distinctive local charm of its many communities. I invite you to visit our new Quartier des spectacles and its Place des festivals, our new Maison symphonique and our new Maison de l'environnement. A bit further west, you will also discover our Fine Arts Museum's new pavilion. Obviously, there is much more to enjoy as well.

I wish great success to the organizers of what I am sure will prove to be a highly productive event.

I wish all of you an excellent stay with us. Happy anniversary!
